

Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by Shteeble - 01 Dec 2011 16:43

Please vote l'toeles harabbim.

Thank you.

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 01 Dec 2011 16:49

It would be good to be able to vote for ones that are particularly bad also.

From my experience Yahoo and AOL are really bad, they both have ads with pictures on every page.

Gmail is very clean, no pics and very few ads.

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by Shteeble - 01 Dec 2011 16:52

I use gmail, but I also need a different email provider so that I can use multiple accounts at once without switching between usernames.

You're right. We need to know which ones are particularly bad too.

For the time being, maybe people can post about them here like you did. Shkoyach!

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by ZemirosShabbos - 01 Dec 2011 17:00

i voted for gmail but there is a serious disadvantage to it, Buzz.

see here

www.guardyoureyes.org/forum/index.php?topic=1827.msg54410#msg54410

www.guardyoureyes.org/forum/index.php?topic=1747.0

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 01 Dec 2011 17:14

From what I keep on seeing when I log into gmail, Buzz is going away. I think they have something new called Google+, i really don't use that sort of thing so i'm not sure what's the difference.

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by obormottel - 01 Dec 2011 17:16

I use mail.com as well as the others, and it is really bad as far as inappropriate ads etc.

So gmail or hotmail is good and safe.

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by gibbor120 - 01 Dec 2011 17:16

I agree that AOL is bad. I made my wife switch to gmail and she has never regretted it.

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by ZemirosShabbos - 01 Dec 2011 18:45

Gevura ShebYesod wrote on 01 Dec 2011 17:14:

From what I keep on seeing when I log into gmail, Buzz is going away. I think they have something new called Google+, i really don't use that sort of thing so i'm not sure what's the difference.

yeah Google+ is the new bad boy on the block. someone recently posted about using it for inappropriate things

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by Blind Beggar - 01 Dec 2011 19:20

It is too obvious to say that Gmail is cleaner than Yahoo! which is full of the filth of the world. WebChaver recommend Gmail with MS Outlook or Mozilla Thunderbird where you can have a dozen Gmail accounts at once without any advertisements. If you cannot use Outlook/Thunderbird you can still have 3 Gmail accounts open at once in the same browser. Here's a link <https://mail.google.com/support/bin/answer.py?hl=en&answer=69570> PM me if you have any difficulty. Gmail also offer 2-step verification which makes your account much more secure from being hacked. Google+ wants to be like Facebook but it never will be and there's nothing there yet anyway so forget about it.

Google Chrome is the cleanest browser if you ask me (and Guard) followed by Mozilla Firefox, just make sure to get the AdBlock add-on for both of them. MS IE brings out the worst of the Internet a little too easily IMHO.

And get LastPass to generate and keep unbreakable passwords for all your sites.

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by Lechayim - 01 Dec 2011 21:40

I believe Gmail has very easily connection buddy system , meaning they share so much to each other and chat is so easy , it can get dangerous by connecting with Chats and and Pics.

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective
Posted by Blind Beggar - 02 Dec 2011 06:29

Lechayim wrote on 01 Dec 2011 21:40:

I believe Gmail has very easily connection buddy system , meaning they share so much to each other and chat is so easy , it can get dangerous by connecting with Chats and and Pics.

All this is true, which is why you should use Outlook or Thunderbird.

Do you have anything else to offer in place of Gmail? Hotmail and Yahoo! both have chat as far as I know.

=====
=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by Yossi.L. - 04 Dec 2011 03:22

Great Idea. I feel like gmail is soooooooooo much better then Yahoo and Aol because there's no trigger opening page.

=====

=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by Reb Yid - 04 Dec 2011 22:44

I now have yeshivanet. Before this, I had hotmail, and I discovered something really cool. I went to the settings in my hotmail account and set my country as Azerbaigan, or something like that. All of the advertisements and potentially triggering stuff seems to be specifically tailored to your location. Since there are no advertisers who care to reach 3rd world markets, your screen remains clean and free!! I'm assuming this would work with those other sites as well.

Try it!!

Hatzlocha,

Reb Yid

=====

=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by Blind Beggar - 05 Dec 2011 11:09

Reb Yid,

I have Gmail but I love your post. Absolutely brilliant!

=====

=====

Re: Best Free Email Accounts: from a GYE Perspective

Posted by an honest mouse - 05 Dec 2011 15:53

I can't vote because i only use hotmail and it sometimes has triggering adverts pop up. Other than that it seems pretty safe. Thanks reb yid for your eitsah!

=====