

Staying Connected!!

Posted by Pidaini - 14 Oct 2014 14:09

Based on the my latest falls, I have committed to keep myself accounted for doing 3 (sheheim 4) things daily

1) Mindfulness (also known as meditation). To take 5 minutes a day and just live in the moment (there was a thread about it somewhere where someone posted about it)

2) I saw on the rules of Dov's Desparados, Dov wrote:

Rule 6 - We agree to take out at least 5 minutes every day to talk to Hashem - even if we feel it is not 'working'...

3) Staying in touch with friends DAILY!! That includes two things

- Calling someone (that knows about my lust tendencies) and speaking to them
- Emailing at least two friends

I checked the staying connected a few times in my mind. Gosh, I shudder to think where I'd be now if I didn't start posting and chatting. It literally has stopped me from acting out numerous times. I can't even contemplate what that means spiritually! Meditation? What a great idea! I will try to get that checked ASAP.

All three days of Yom Tov/Shabbos I did what I could, Meditation and talking to Hashem.

Last night, I could have done email and called, but I got swept up in helping clean up. I did chat with the good Doctor.

Missed almost everything yesterday, was travelling.

Done my emails for today, haven't spoken to anyone, including Hashem, yet. Will update later.

Not sure if this counts as a wisecrack, but have the commitments been helpin'?
