

17 points to pull you away from immodest Internet

Posted by anonymous_14 - 28 Oct 2015 21:59

1 Review Correct Attitudes

?One day at a time

?Purity of thought ?

?Understanding our true purpose

?Happiness

?Stubbornness

?Starting a new

?One step at a time

?Be strong!

?Believe in yourself

?Hashem's mercy

2 Replace sin with alternative?

3 Mikvah?

4 Tzitzit ?

5 Physical Exercise

6 Guarding the Eyes?

7 Guarding your Speech ?

8 Keeping Busy ?

9 Charity?

10 Care with Secular world ?

11 Care with Alcohol?

12 Care with Internet ?

13 Torah Study ?

Study mussar?

14 Prayer?

15 Tehillim ?

16 Shema and Bedtime shema?

17 Tikkun klali ?

Taken from ebook "Holy Nation"

=====

Re: 17 points to pull you away from immodest Internet
Posted by markz - 28 Oct 2015 23:30

I counted 27

Warning: Spoiler!

=====

=====

Re: 17 points to pull you away from immodest Internet
Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 29 Oct 2015 10:58

=====

=====

Re: 17 points to pull you away from immodest Internet
Posted by markz - 29 Oct 2015 11:12

GS are you 80+?

(Ben I'Gevura)

Who says he's 14? Are you 94?
How in the world do you climb up into your monstah?

I think this thread is getting way too personal...

=====

=====

Re: 17 points to pull you away from immodest Internet
Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 29 Oct 2015 13:26

I agree that it's annoying (and maybe a little insulting) when someone comes here and starts spouting eitzos and rules without letting us know anything about himself. We might take him more seriously if we knew that he was speaking from personal experience ("street cred").

But I just thought the assumption was not necessarily true (maybe he was born in 1914 and he's 101!). And I couldn't resist the wisecrack (am I an addict?)

P.S. I'm nowhere near Gevuros yet, and I'm not 37 either.

=====
=====

Re: 17 points to pull you away from immodest Internet
Posted by cordnoy - 29 Oct 2015 13:36

Gevura Shebyesod wrote:

I agree that it's annoying (and maybe a little insulting) when someone comes here and starts spouting eitzos and rules without letting us know anything about himself. We might take him more seriously if we knew that he was speaking from personal experience ("street cred").

But I just thought the assumption was not necessarily true (maybe he was born in 1914 and he's 101!). And I couldn't resist the wisecrack (am I an addict?)

P.S. I'm nowhere near Gevuros yet, and I'm not 37 either.

Ain't that a mouthful for Mr. bashful!

I'm impressed.

=====
=====

Re: 17 points to pull you away from immodest Internet
Posted by Shlomo24 - 29 Oct 2015 18:11

Good call cordy. I am maskim to 94squared, let us now who u are and how it worked. it would be terribly ironic if anony14 isn't sober.

=====
=====

Re: 17 points to pull you away from immodest Internet

Posted by Mesayin - 29 Oct 2015 18:19

9494 wrote:

Gevura Shebyesod wrote:

Who says he's 14? Are you 94?

Well the fact that he has posted numerous posts offering "advice", never once introducing himself or speaking from his personal experience makes me think he is in the teen years. Its OK to do that of course, but it is a very teenage sort of thing to do...

I hear you guys, however he does give some good ideas, and besides he writes some stuff that 14 year olds don't know about.

=====

Re: 17 points to pull you away from immodest Internet

Posted by Shlomo24 - 29 Oct 2015 18:22

Mesayin wrote:

I hear you guys, however he does give some good ideas, and besides he writes some stuff that 14 year olds don't know about.

umm i think most 14 yr olds know abt this stuff. i sure as hell did

=====

=====