

Mickey Mouse ApproachPosted by Trouble - 11 May 2018 15:22

---

Hi,

"What works for me" is the category, so I figured I'd let you know a method that I have been tinkering with, and I am glad to report that when used (that doesn't mean that I always use it), it is 6 and 0!

Here goes: (the last instance): I was jogging in the park minding my own business (supposedly), when on my left, a 23 year old blonde girl in a ponytail wearing a tank top & shorts passed me by (I figured she was 23, for i was able to count her veins, similar to the age of a tree). Now, from the moment I saw her, I knew she was mine for the taking. I instinctively sped up (as I felt my rib cage in agony) to get a better look, and to accurately assess if she indeed was 23, or perhaps I counted wrong. It was then that I knew that I was lusting after her and it needed to stop - immediately! [First I tried several other methods; more about that later.] So, for the sixth time, I used my method: I began to sing: M-I-C-K-E-Y M-O-U-S-E; Mickey Mouse (come on, you know it, sing along with me), and after several glances from other passerbys, it was over; I no longer was lusting after that 33 year old brunette; I was done with her. Hot dog, hot dog, hot diggety dog! Pulled out my index card, labeled - you guessed it: Mickey Mouse Approach; pulled out my hole puncher and notched for the sixth time a hole in the "victory" column. The losses column is still resting comfortably at 0. It works if you work it; you're worth it, so work it! "It's a brand new day; what'cha waiting for?

Now, some of you naysayers might say that I was just using the "distraction" method, but indeed I wasn't, and I can prove it. I tried that first. I distracted myself by counting sheep, but every sheep I envisioned was wearing the same tank top and shorts. No good.

I also tried the davaning approach; so I prayed for her, but I was praying that she and I would be holding hands by the Kosel (thru the mechitzah of course), both of us fervently praying that this relationship should last.

It was then that i pulled out the last stop gap; step one! I admitted that i was powerless and my life was unmanageable, and that was true, but if she would just come home with me, my life would be completely manageable.

What was I to do? I took out my pocket chovas halevavos and mesilas yesharim, but all I could think of was that the "straight path" would be by following my "heart" and hers was probably in the same place.

Nothing doing.

When all else fails, Mickey Mouse comes to the rescue - six times in a row - Goofy would be proud.

Not that i'm so audacious to tell any of you that this tried and proven method would work for you, but it might.

So long for now (that's me!).

=====
=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach

Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 11 May 2018 15:56

---

Try counting these sheep...

Warning: Spoiler!

=====

=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by elul - 13 May 2018 17:54

---

I love trouble!

=====

=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by Trouble - 15 May 2018 22:24

---

Not always is it a winning song.

=====

=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by motcha1234 - 16 Oct 2018 19:56

---

Why naysayers? Whats wrong with distraction?

=====

=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by Trouble - 16 Oct 2018 23:25

---

motcha1234 wrote on 16 Oct 2018 19:56:

Why naysayers? Whats wrong with distraction?

For it is a method that will inherently fail, over and over again. Your object of desire will eventually win over your distraction.

=====

=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by bigederanusim - 17 Oct 2018 21:56

---

how does the song go? i never heard it before

=====

=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by i-man - 17 Oct 2018 23:06

---

It probably doesn't specifically need to be Mickey mouse I'm sure Bob the builder or barney would also work

(Dont take my word for it though trouble has the final say)

=====

=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by Trouble - 02 Nov 2018 19:02

---

Mickey Mouse - Poof!

Wonder if me and that other guy can go into partnership together.

=====

=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by stillgoing - 02 Nov 2018 19:42

---

Trouble wrote on 11 May 2018 15:22:

Hi,

....

Here goes: (the last instance): I was jogging in the park minding my own business (supposedly), when on my left, a 23 year old blonde girl in a ponytail wearing a tank top & shorts passed me by (I figured she was 23, for i was able to count her veins, similar to the age of a tree). Now, from the moment I saw her, I knew she was mine for the taking. I instinctively sped up (as I felt my rib cage in agony) to get a better look, and to accurately assess if she indeed was 23, or perhaps I counted wrong. It was then that I knew that I was lusting after her and it needed to stop - immediately! [First I tried several other methods; more about that later.] So, for the sixth time, I used my method: I began to sing: M-I-C-K-E-Y M-O-U-S-E; Mickey Mouse (come on, you know it, sing along with me), and after several glances from other passerbys, it was over; I no longer was lusting after that 33 year old brunette; I was done with her. Hot dog, hot dog, hot....

.....

So long for now (that's me!).

Sorry that I missed this when it first came out. Truly a good idea (it's even in the gemara with a slight difference (Disney Buvel wasn't open yet))

I'm particularly amazed that it took 10 years for you to sing the song! Imagine, she was 23 when you first saw her. You were sure of it, yet after you sang you passed her and she was 33! Truly amazing. Unless, after the lust passed you realized that she wasn't as old as you thought she was...

Warning: Spoiler!

=====
=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by Trouble - 02 Nov 2018 19:47

---

Brunettes appear older.

=====
=====

Re: Mickey Mouse Approach
Posted by stillgoing - 02 Nov 2018 19:55

---

You counted the veins. That excuse is in vain. It was a vain attempt...

=====
=====