

iPhone Upgrade

Posted by Rmartin911 - 14 Nov 2018 14:43

I was relying on iPhone restrictions on my phone until they stopped working. I think what happened was that a recent iPhone OS upgrade wiped out what I had put in place. As I had "thrown away" the password I had to find a way to retrieve it. This was really not very hard. So here are a few lessons:

1) Watch out for Upgrades

2) Having someone else only know your password is not at all full proof

3) I have since removed Safari as an allowable app as I found that it has weaknesses (even after release 12 restrictions) and use K9 instead

4) If you are worried about not being able to link from emails - you can easily now copy them into K9

?I'm sure GYE Filter recommendations are better than mine - so look over there for better advice.

Hatzlacha!

=====

Re: iPhone Upgrade

Posted by Markz - 14 Nov 2018 16:12

Not sure if you've been to TAG and have your info on their files, because I got an email alert from them not to install the next OS upgrade due to possible issues...

You can replace Safari with Covenant Eyes browser Alternately...

Stick around and you may learn some new things here :-)

=====
=====

Re: iPhone Upgrade

Posted by Hakolhevel - 14 Nov 2018 18:04

Covenant eyes has a browser? Or is that just for iOS.

=====
=====

Re: iPhone Upgrade

Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 15 Nov 2018 03:22

Hi RMartin, I have pretty much the same setup as you. i also have safari disabled by restrictions (and i know how to break the password for that in a couple of minutes if I wanted to) and I use the K9 browser. It only filters the basic stuff and it's not configurable but it does the job.

In truth I don't see that filters alone is a long-term solution for anyone with a problem. there's always a way around them. Personally, I can get around most filters pretty easily, and I have daily access to dozens of computers which I control the filters for. And in any case my original and primary problem was never the computer anyway, it's the real-life people i am attracted to and fantasize over, and there's no filter for that.

Filtering is important, if only to prevent stuff from being seen by mistake, and to give you a bit of time to catch yourself and rethink what you're doing while you work to get around it. But real and lasting change has to come from within.

=====
=====