

We All Appreciate A Thank You

Posted by stopsurvivingstartliving - 03 Feb 2025 14:02

I just wanted to bring up that myself and others I spoke to really really appreciate seeing "thank you's" on our posts. It shows that there are real people reading it. So if you read a post and you are mechuzek from it or you simply appreciate it please press the thank you button.

Thank you guys!

#WEWANTKARMABACK!!

At one point a while back I noticed my Karma going down. I didn't think I was doing anything to cause it and I wasn't taking it well so I shut it off. I am giving you guys another chance.

I feel like a fool, but what is this karma all about? and how does it work?

They didn't teach you in the Mir that we aren't Nevardik and we don't call ourselves fools?

Anyway, under your username there is something called Karma. Each user can increase someone's Karma once every few hours. You can also decrease someone's Karma such as a Nevardiker that doesn't like the Mirrers. The point of it shows how "liked" the person is by the general crowd here. I hope this answers your question.

PS Are you gonna give me a Karma for this?
