

sleeping on a wooden floor

Posted by StrugglingGuy - 24 Jun 2010 16:40

I recently started sleeping on the floor instead of my bed. Why? My floor is made of wood. I put a blanket down and wrap it around myself and it's kmat like Im sleeping on the floor. My challanges come from ms not with my hand but with imitation of an 'act'. Therefore, being on the floor serves as an all-important deterrent for me to not eja. (It is quite uncomfortable to lie face down on a wooden floor if you didnt already get it...)

However, I still touch myself and fantasize. So, the root of my taavah still exists. Technically, what I still do is called 'ms'; obviously, though, not ej is a success, I believe.

This has worked for me (somewhat)

=====
====