After seeing no success (only the opposite actually) I stopped reading the book, I have no chance to win in this battle!

Sometimes when you wave the white book in surrender you win the battle! Send us postcards from SA friend! Just kidding - stick around please!

Pg 169 - 170:

I have been struggling a lot with finding my place in the world - I have like 5 jobs part-time - mostly because I'm trying to figure out what I want to be when I grow up. A lot of it revolves around "honor" or perhaps the English for it is "success." The discussion here about how the desire for honor is really a sublimated desire to "be great" and make great decisions and become great people - the opportunity afforded to us by fighting against lust in a way that never was experienced by the generations past. Success and feeling good about who I am is something very meaningful to me now, and iyh I can recognize how I can achieve that greatness by beating lust in my life and achieving the greatness that I was destined for. Even if everyone thinks what I wrote about SA is stupid... (partially in jest)

Hashem gives everybody a unique challenges and situations in life. We are judged by how we respond, not by comparison to anybody else.
