AI
Posted by m111 - 12 Mar 2025 19:20

_____

Hi everyone. The person that coaches me with my work on development of the courses I give keeps on telling me that I should use AI specifically Chat GBT and Claude, as it can aid my work and do wonders such as transcribing content and creating transcrips for classes.

What are the risks and problems with using AI?

What are the Rabbonim and people in the know saying?

===
====

Re: AI
Posted by BenHashemBH - 12 Mar 2025 19:55

_____

m111 wrote on 12 Mar 2025 19:20:

Hi everyone. The person that coaches me with my work on development of the courses I give keeps on telling me that I should use AI specifically Chat GBT and Claude, as it can aid my work and do wonders such as transcribing content and creating transcrips for classes.

What are the risks and problems with using AI?

What are the Rabbonim and people in the know saying?

Shalom Chaver,

 Disclaimer - I ain't no Rabbi, nor a person in the know

Just to scratch the surface:

There are risks of getting lost in the vast depth of everything, let alone whether the things are kosher or not.

Using AI as a tool to help you do a job can save time.

Using AI as a tool to replace your job risks errors and mental decline if you always have it think for you.

It would be easy to get used to relying on AI as a shortcut and stop thinking for yourself.

If you "need" it for a particular task, perhaps do your best to limit using it only for that specific function.

Hatzlacha!

==
====

Re: AI
Posted by chosemyshem - 12 Mar 2025 19:57
_____

What are the Rabbonim saying - I assume you mean besides the cherem the Rabbonim in Lakewood put out?

AI is just like the internet. Seductive, trashy, and eventually useful to the point of nearly being indispensable.

For transcription you can use something like Otter.ai so you don't have to worry about other content.

I will say I have seen people whose English skills are lacking use AI to massively better their communications - but you can also generally tell that it's through AI.

==
====

Re: AI
Posted by yitzchokm - 12 Mar 2025 23:43
_____

I am not familiar with AI but it might depend on the filter. I wonder how well content filters work with AI.

==
====

Re: AI
Posted by m111 - 13 Mar 2025 12:54

_____

Does Gemini of Google have the issues of AI?

==
====

Re: AI
Posted by BenHashemBH - 13 Mar 2025 14:30

_____

m111 wrote on 13 Mar 2025 12:54:

Does Gemini of Google have the issues of AI?

I believe Gemini is an AI

==
====

Re: AI
Posted by m111 - 14 Mar 2025 10:09

_____

*I*s it just a helper for tasks in google workspace, or does it have the above mentioned issues?

==
====

Re: AI
Posted by mosheman - 19 Mar 2025 19:05

_____

I am pretty sure it can do anything that chat gpt and other AI can do. it's just Google's version to also be beneficial for the use of their products.

==
====

Re: AI
Posted by chizuk613613613 - 28 Apr 2025 15:24

_____

Here are some kosher ai sites provided by Techloq when trying to access ai websites

Please be aware that AI websites may contain inappropriate content, we recommend you use KosherGPT.org, Safetmind.com or binaplus.co.il

==
====

Re: AI
Posted by dudeshemesh - 30 Jul 2025 13:31

_____

I'm not a "posek", but if there is no one monitoring you're computer, then you can get lost with AI. That's why I never had an AI app on my phone even when I had an unfiltered smart-phone...It's an endless sea of data...And who said that it's accurate?

==
====