

Come on and ride the train

I am sure we can come up with a GYE theme song....

ride teh train

step on board, take your ticket,

no two are the same

you'll soon be going for a ride

nowhere to run

No need to hide

youre riding riding riding on the train but you try to check your ticket and you dont know what it means will you get to sit on velvet and ine on fine cuisine?

or is your place to be up on a worn out wooden seat with a slice of old and crusty bread your only food to eat

the doors are closing the whistles blowing now you must remain the locomotives on a roll just some things you cant control

so you ask an older passenger how long will this ride be he says "sorry son i cant say there is no guarantee it might be the next station, we'll be there in no time but maybe if youre lucky you can stay till the end of the line" then you take a walk up thru the trian each boxcar one by one most are filled by people saying this ride's just for fun why think about tommoorw when you've got today instead sit back enjoy the vei w there's miles and miles of rail ahead ride the train.....

come on everybody ride the train

ride the train.....

but one car seems so different inhabited by few who say there is no time to waste we're only passing through the choices that you make today are all that's gonna last this train is moving down the track and it's moving awful fast

noplace to hide

youre riding riding riding on the train.....

i might have wrote some words incorrectly...

Anyone want to try?

Gee, that sounds eerily familiar...

Abie Rotenberg, right?
