

O'Mottel's Kitchen

Posted by obormottel - 02 Nov 2011 23:29

It seems that a lot of us here suffer from malnutrition, which tends to bring about depression and other machlas of the mind. I mean, how are you gonna feel good about yourself, when you're 30 pounds overweight, and you don't even have an excuse of a recent pregnancy?

So pile in, and if you're sick of cholint and kishke, I'll set you up with a nutritious meal that is inexpensive and good for you at the same.

Oh, and we do give out complimentary drink tickets to Bardy's Pub with each meal. You may have to check with Bards, though, if he'll honor them for anything other than a shot of Crapowitz.

Don't have too much fun in the kitchen: you may slip and fall on a knife.

Seeing as the kitchen has been a bit empty lately, I have some lunch to share. A wrap (not whole grain, whole wheat, or flaxseed). The bottom layer is sliced tomato. Then tuna fish (which you can't really see). Shredded lettuce, topped with olives and diced dill pickle, drizzled with honey mustard dressing.

"I don't feel very much like Pooh today," said Pooh.

"There there," said Piglet. "I'll bring you tea and honey until you do."

? A.A. Milne, Winnie-the-Pooh

(is that what the honey in your dressing is for?)

'What tremendously easy riddles you ask!' Humpty Dumpty growled out. 'Of course I don't think so! Why, if ever I did fall off — which there's no chance of — but if I did —' Here he pursed up his lips, and looked so solemn and grand that Alice could hardly help laughing. 'If I did fall,' he went on, 'the King has promised me — ah, you may turn pale, if you like! You didn't think I was going to say that, did you? The King has promised me — with his very own mouth — to — to —'

'To send all his horses and all his men,' Alice interrupted, rather unwisely.

'Now I declare that's too bad!' Humpty Dumpty cried, breaking into a sudden passion. 'You've been listening at doors — and behind trees — and down chimneys — or you couldn't have known it!'

'I haven't indeed!' Alice said very gently. 'It's in a book.'

'Ah, well! They may write such things in a book,' Humpty Dumpty said in a calmer tone. 'That's what you call a History of England, that is. Now, take a good look at me! I'm one that has spoken to a King, I am: mayhap you'll never see such another: and, to show you I'm not proud, you may shake hands with me!' And he grinned almost from ear to ear, as he leant forwards (and as nearly as possible fell off the wall in doing so) and offered Alice his hand. She watched him a little anxiously as she took it. 'If he smiled much more the ends of his mouth might meet behind,' she thought: 'And then I don't know what would happen to his head! I'm afraid it would come off!'

'Yes, all his horses and all his men,' Humpty Dumpty went on. 'They'd pick me up again in a minute, they would!'

The point is that dumpty shoulda just gotten off that wall and grabbed a case of beer for a chill out fishing trip. Foolish dumpty let his pride get to him instead and.... Well just look what happened.... Don't be a dumpty!
