BETA ideas:

1. Uses GPS tracking to determine your geo-location; if it sees you are near certain internet parlours, or places of ill repute, it sends you a Notification: "WHAT ARE YOU DOING HERE"
2. Accelerometer detects unusual motions of acting out and sends out email to GYE group, notifying of risks.
3. "Find another addict" allows you to quickly find an addict within 5 km so you can take refuge.

etc add your own feature...

you don't think i have a geshtaltzimfleegin-immobilizer installed?

if you try installing it you will be transmogrified into a 7-day-old piece of yerushalmi kugel with antennae also regarding the spellings and meanings of "Geshtaltzimfleegin", See, geshtaltzumpfleeen - nobody seems to know the definition of this one at the moment.

Shteeble wrote on 11 Nov 2010 15:55:

And,

TehillimZugger wrote on 22 Aug 2011 12:40:

geshtantzimfleeen should really be spelled gesztanzuflugen with some of those funny dashes and ballies on top of certain letters that i would've added if i would know how to , and it was first coined on february 8th 1289 by emperor william the 5th, its meaning is unclear but it was definitely coined then. Emperor William the 5th is also responsible for introducing the words twitzilhanpfen, and fleerenhaben, all with no known meanings. after all he was the emperor and able to put whatever he wanted in the dictionary [even though according to wikipedia the first german dictionary was written in 1838] and nobody dared tell the emperor, hey where's the definition, that would've been like saying the emperor has no clothes.

to use these words in a sentence: geshtantzifleeen! the twitzilhanpfen ate the whole fleerenhaben.

isn't german amazing?

No, that's the De-Bardifier.

The Bardifier switches everything into ALL CAPS and changes all "G"s and "K"s into "GGGGGGGGGGGGGGGG" and "KKKKKKKKKKKKKK".
