

The Legend of Cord

Posted by ZemirosShabbos - 17 Sep 2015 14:22

In the annals of GYE history, never has so much been posted in so short a time, with such a high post-IQ as in the record of our dear chaver Avraham/Cordnoy.

As such, as acting chairman of the Ad Hoc Committee to Mark the Sixth Millennial of Cordism, I move to proclaim today as National Accordion Day.

All in favor please raise your shot glasses

serenity

I keep my phone in the shower, so if I start getting tempted I can make a call and electrocute myself. The shock usually takes away the desire. You may be thinking that a cell phone doesn't shock you when it gets wet. That is normally true but I have a special APP called lustshock. I wanted to try a hair dryer, but I was told it could kill me.

There seems to be some confusion about the origins of the name Cordnoy. I've been wracking my brains, and at 2 AM, this is what I got:

Option 1: Cordial as in warm and friendly - perhaps.

Option 2: I woodn't say that he's that full of himself

Warning: Spoiler!

Option 3: Maybe he takes a cordial shot or 2 right before the calls;

Warning: Spoiler!

Whatever it was, it's become something special - thank you!

Warm and friendly doesn't seem to fit well.

At first I looked at "woodn't," and said, "wut? Did hee aqsooalle spel it that waigh?" But then I saw the picture below and said, "wheh."

I love cordials.

Thanks for the conclusion.

The origin of the name Cordnoy comes from two words:

- 1) Cord
- 2) Noy (as in noy sukka)

1) He is the cord that is connecting all of us together and to sobriety

That is probably referring to his serious side

2) He is the one that makes GYE such a nice place to hang around.

That is probably referring to his humorous side.

KOT!!!!!! All the way to a million posts.

That's a great explanation, whether it's true or not.

Maybe now, you can explain where the name unanumun comes from.

Spanish - Una (one) new man?

Yiddish - On a numen - without a name?

Breslov - Anonymous in Uman?
