

Forum Tips and Tricks

Posted by lionking - 28 Apr 2017 10:23

I'm starting a thread were people can discuss different usages on the forum.

- When are thank you's used for?
- What is karma and when does it apply? (is it dead?!)
- The usage of quotes and how to quote from on thread to another?
- The difference between the reply button under a post and the reply topic on a thread?
- Spoilers
- Each person sticking to one thread and posting on other's threads or starting a new thread for every little thing. (I understand some things are better of in a separate thread)

Let's get the fun started...

=====

=====

Re: Forum Tips and Tricks

Posted by lionking - 28 Apr 2017 10:36

lionking wrote on 28 Apr 2017 10:23:

- The usage of quotes and how to quote from on thread to another?

Ok here is an example of a quote. In order to post this on a different thread, I would first press quote on this thread goto the source view and copy out the raw text especially what's in the [square brackets].

Perhaps someone has easier way.

=====

=====

Re: Forum Tips and Tricks

Posted by lionking - 28 Apr 2017 10:41

lionking wrote on 28 Apr 2017 10:23:

- Each person sticking to one thread and posting on other's threads or starting a new thread for every little thing. (I understand some things are better of in a separate thread)

Ok here is a quote from the forum help.

3.) If you want to add to your thread or respond to someone else's thread, do not start a new thread. Rather, go to the thread you'd like to add to, click "reply," and compose your post.

=====

Re: Forum Tips and Tricks

Posted by lionking - 28 Apr 2017 12:43

This thread is formally closed. Check out the awesome thread by Gibor here. First tip should be to use the search function, (or ask Markz:smile:)

Thanks Markz for the link. You encyclopedic knowledge of the forums is astonishing

=====

Re: Forum Tips and Tricks

Posted by cordnoy - 28 Apr 2017 12:56

lionking wrote on 28 Apr 2017 12:43:

This thread is formally closed. Check out the awesome thread by Gibor here. First tip should be to use the search function, (or ask Markz:smile:)

Thanks Markz for the link. You encyclopedic knowledge of the forums is astonishing

Il like your language. It works for computer novices like me.

=====

=====