

The Grouchery: Haven for the Grumpily Disgruntled

Posted by youknowwho - 08 Mar 2024 15:01

Speaking to a few friends offline gave birth to this idea, it seems to be an urgent and immediate necessity.

Welcome to...The Grouchery: Haven for the Grumpily Disgruntled

This thread is a place where one can feel free to rant, vent and gripe.

It is a safe haven for negativity, sourness and blahness.

It is a place where one can be sure to find a healthy dose of demotivating advice. It is a place where any kind of positivity is strictly forbidden.

It is a place where you can vent about what a rotten day you're having and not worry that people will then reach out with concerned pm's/texts...cuz nobody really cares. And that's perfectly fine, why should anybody care?

Please Remember:

-No profanity (Sadly)

-No personal insults (Sadly)

- Absolutely no: Nice, positive, warm, loving, optimistic, motivational, supportive or inspiring posts. (Not sadly)

Enter at your own risk!

I find it very compelling that @youknowwho put this thread under the "Just Having Fun" tab.....

Well....the only other possible category to put it under would be "The Torah and Chizuk Approach", but I didn't think the "shtellah" folks would appreciate that at all....

OMG! I just wrote a whole post, and it didn't go through. You guys must have set it up that I can't post here. You are afraid of what I'll have to say, who knows what damaging encouragement I'll share C"V

Will retry soon....because there's NEVER a reason to despair!!!!

Consider this your first warning. You have violated the rules of this thread. One more strike and be ready to suffer the consequences.

Now, let me address your poor excuse of a post: There is EVERY reason to despair.

I actually like this question and want to address it on a more serious note.

I think I was afraid that the impression would be that we are encouraging reinforcing negative, grouchy dialogues instead of promoting healthy thinking. So the message is, yes, it's sometimes beneficial and perhaps fun to gripe, but ultimately (and sadly) the cheesy, horrible things called care, empathy, chizuk, positivity and motivation are what actually work best to help oneself move ahead in life.

Allright, having said that, now you can all shoot me...

I'm a traitor, I know. An evil impostor, running amok deep within the dingy, grey corridors of The Grouchery.

Actually, you succeeded. My post (which went lost-argh:)) went something like this:

OOOOOOOOOOOOOO

MMMMMMMMMMMMMM

GGGGGGGGGGGGGG

!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

OOOOOOOOOO

MMMMMMMMMMMM

GGGGGGGGGGGG

!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

What the (beep) is going on here???!!!!

I wasn't on GYE for a while, due to some grouchfying stuff, and here I come back to find THIS???!!!!

Truth to be told, after reading YKW's first post I thought I can't post here, because anything remotely similar to Eerie would be totally against any of the rules. But then I read through it and laughed so hard at mankind's attempt to make life sound sad. So I'm here to tell you:It's been swell. and NOW: GET THE (BEEP) OFF THIS THREAD AND SMILE!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

On a serious note, it's actually a great thread, in the right place. Yes, we human beings need to kvetch (thing is, nobody cares to hear me kvetch, except that that was a kvetch..). And kvetch we may. And as long as we remember that at the end of the kvetch about Friday, Wed or anyday or thing or person or pronoun, we gotta look for the guy that will somehow, someway, make us smile.

Grumping is sometimes very healthy. It allows us to relieve tension and then recover and see things straight. This is as long as we aren't throwing rocks at anyone. Please don't stone me for this one. I am trying to keep the thread alive and healthy.
