

The Grouchery: Haven for the Grumpily Disgruntled

Speaking to a few friends offline gave birth to this idea, it seems to be an urgent and immediate necessity.

Welcome to...The Grouchery: Haven for the Grumpily Disgruntled

This thread is a place where one can feel free to rant, vent and gripe.

It is a safe haven for negativity, sourness and blahness.

It is a place where one can be sure to find a healthy dose of demotivating advice. It is a place where any kind of positivity is strictly forbidden.

It is a place where you can vent about what a rotten day you're having and not worry that people will then reach out with concerned pm's/texts...cuz nobody really cares. And that's perfectly fine, why should anybody care?

Please Remember:

-No profanity (Sadly)

-No personal insults (Sadly)

- Absolutely no: Nice, positive, warm, loving, optimistic, motivational, supportive or inspiring posts. (Not sadly)

Enter at your own risk!

Something about this grouch is reminding me of the guy who was wondering why the news had mentioned one car going the wrong way, when they all were...

Why is it that, when dancing the hora by weddings, bar mitzvahs, etc. I always seem to end up between two shmoees who each decide to do the steps at their own pace- both of which are off from the song AND the rest of the circle? Not only that, (just like in traffic) whenever I go to either another circle, or even the same circle just a different place, those shmoees suddenly find it within them to hora properly, and then my new "buddies" are the new shmoees?????

Warning: Spoiler!

Chaver, have you ever considered the possibility that you're the shmoe...?

Exactly. Nobody has EVER proved that he was the odd one out, as your bolded words indicate.

Until now, no. I've never considered that possibility. And it shall remain like that.

But, dear Chaver, GYE is all about taking the blame even when there's no proof. Nay, especially when there's no proof. When all else fails, it can be traced to your lust.

Edit:

Now, this was a thinly veiled grouch.

Having personally danced next to Tzitzis Dude yesterday, I can confirm he was doing the kazatzka like the shpoler zeida!

Perfect steps.

Oh, yes. Those legs were flying and the socks were showing. Oof. I'm still sore. Makes me think I should do it more often.

I will say, though, (not to brag [which always means that a brag is coming]), but when I got to the wedding of my friend (different event than where the kazatzka went down), it was mid-2nd dance and the slow 2-step was happening. Yours truly got in there and painfully joined in. However, when the chosson pulled me in, I did the hora with him, and guess what? The rest of the oilam joined along.

Rain rain and more rain, I know it's a bracha but sure makes it hard to say mashiv haruach when all I can think about is my soaked socks

Snow, snow, and more snow.

Steady 5 degrees out there so that the very ice is doubly frozen.

The car is crummy and filthy with whatever combination of snow and anti-snow chemicals.

The wiper fluid is frozen, so I can't see out. My attempt at cleaning the windshield ended with frozen Windex on it.

My fingers are chapped and my whole body is dry and itchy, and where the heck is that draft coming from?!

Could be that drafts coming from the open doors of the 3 bus I'm on where you're welcome to join me but you'll have to stand cuz the seats are soaked by all the kids who stand on them mistaking the bus for a rollercoaster, and you'll have to mind the soaked umbrellas attacking you from all directions while you get a headache from that one chalmi who's having a screaming match/ private Business meeting, all while patiently waiting to daven by the kosel for this mabul to finally end.

102 little things gone wrong today. Little things.

Life, save it for Monday please. It's too late in the week for this.
