

CHANGE... Before And After

Posted by rebakiva - 06 Nov 2024 15:53

Hi I'm opening this new thread for everyone to write in 1 thing per post, that has changed in their life from before joining the GYE community, to afterwards.

The change can be anything that has chnaged due to being a part of the GYE community in your personal life, in your marriage, for the people around you like family and friends, or even just a way of viewing certain things like your way of life etc.

If you want you can ad an explanation for it, or why that thing has changed, or how it changed your life going forward.

Let's try to keep it at 1 thing per post, and not to long, just so it'll be easier to read in the future.

Thanks.

Before I used to view women as objects, therefore they were sexy, but now I view them as Human beings, who are looking for true intimacy with their husbands and a life full of love and nachas from their children, and they're totally not interested in my lusting & fantasizing over them therefore they ain't no sexy, they dont take up any space in my mind anymore.

For more info please listen to dov's shiurim on the topic.

After I joined gye (i joined little more then a month ago) I have much more energy to fight, I'm coming up here almost every day I see so many ppl are fighting for freedom I think I wanna be part of them and I'll also fight!

I got a totally more Positive look on the whole thing, it's amazing no words

4. I used to view a first look {even if it was a mistake} as the driving force leading me into an irresistible urge, now I view it as an opportunity to win big and not take that second look.

5. I used to view a urge as the driving force leading me into p&m, now I view it as a little dog {chi chi wawa} trying to control me but I'll control him instead of him controlling me.

Find the fox method.

6. I used to view the Internet as a door to p..., now I very cautiously view it as a door to getting helped and helping fellow brothers here on GYE in inyanei kedusha.

I used to think that if I were ever to get clean, it would only be after I got married. Now I see that, even though it is hard, it is definitely in my grasp to stop now and stay clean forever, even if I remain single for a long time.

10. I used to dread saying kedusha followed by the beracha of ata kadosh knowing that I don't deserve the VIP ticket to earn saying that, but now I say it with so much passion and love to hashem for giving the zechus of being a part of his kedusha.

As r' avigdor miller explained Ata kadosh and we're welcome to be a part of hashem's kedusha.

I tried to stop many times because of all the negative feelings of shame and guilt, but it never lasted.

Now I feel good about my efforts and accomplishments, which fuels the maintenance and continued growth BezH.

Running away from bad is tiring.

Running towards better is inspiring.

14. I used to stand at the window {even during davening} and look down... at people, now I either avoid the window or look up at the sky and let hashem's love flow through my veins.
