The hotel room was dark, the glow from the shattered phone screen flickering like a dying flame on the floor.

His hands were trembling. Not from cold from truth.

She didn't scream. She just looked at him. Her eyes, which once sparkled with simplicity and loyalty, now shimmered with disbelief and pain.

"I don't care about the scam," she whispered. "Just tell me it's not true... Tell me the rest isn't true..."

He couldn't.

And for the first time since he was eleven years old when he first learned how to delete browser history he felt something inside him truly break.

Chapter 1: *The Perfect Bochor

To the outside world, Shaya was the dream.

A masmid, a baal kishron, mevakeish emes. In yeshiva, people said he was the next rosh yeshiva. Even the mashgiach once said at a mussar shmues, "If you want to see what it means to live with yiras shamayim, look at Shaya."

He smiled. He nodded. He kept his head down.

But he also knew how to work filters. How to erase data. How to cry on Yom Kippur... and fall the next night.

No one ever guessed. Not his rebbeim. Not his friends. Not his chaver chavrusah of six years who sat inches from him every morning at 7:00 a.m.

Only Hashem knew the truth. And it haunted him.

If you consider the topic of Boredom—too much time with too little to do, or too much energy with nowhere to channel it

I have a perfect first half of the story. The happy ending is still unfolding.
