

Home of Gibbor120

Posted by gibbor120 - 18 Aug 2011 21:06

Hi,

I introduced myself, not long ago, Here. But I have grown since then, and have outgrown my small house in the "Introduce Yourself" part of town. I am a Jr. Member and soon will be a "Full Member" IY"H, so I decided I needed to build a new house in a new neighborhood. I looked around at different neighborhoods and saw some spectacular houses in "Wall of Honor". I see that Zemmy and Bards have built here among others, so I decided to plant myself here as well. I will hopefully build some walls of honor myself, and continue to make great friends along the way.

I plan to use this as my main posting thread. So please come in and make a l'chayim, or enjoy some chocolate babke and fresh brewed coffee, or just stop by to say hello.

It's a privilege to dwell among such chashuve yidden!

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120

Posted by ZemirosShabbos - 28 Sep 2011 14:25

amen!

a happy sweet right now to you and yours and a ksiva vechasima tova to same!

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120

Posted by gibbor120 - 03 Oct 2011 15:52

Ok, here's my next question...

Recently, Shteeble posted this from yechida (amar shteeble amar yechida amar Dr. Benzion):

www.guardyoureyes.org/forum/index.php?topic=4503.msg120785#msg120785

It is an article about the psychological reasons behind acting out. For a long time, I was very interested in knowing the reasons behind my acting out. Did it have to do with my childhood, my school experience, my parent's divorce etc. When I came to this site, I heard things like, "live in the solution, not in the problem", "Just keep on truikin"... I began to think that it doesn't matter why. Don't look back, stay in the present, and move forward.

Now I am rethinking to what extent is it valuable to understand the reasons behind acting out? I can see how being preoccupied with it can be counter productive. Does it really matter why? It needs to be fixed - period. On the other hand, understanding the source of the problem seems to be essential in fixing it (IMHO).

I thought this part of the article was especially good.

A frum person who is acting out sexually (or in any other serious manner) will experience intense guilt and profound shame....(skipping a bit) This will drive him to intensify his efforts at controlling his behavior. Unfortunately, these efforts will most often turn out to be ineffective since the effort involves suppression due to terror as opposed to change resulting from growth. (emphasis mine)

I am interested to hear what the oilam has to say about this. Especially, Reb Yid who was the catalyst for it (i think). I had similar school experience although I'm don't know if I have ADHD. I was hyperactive and had trouble focusing on my work. I was frequently in trouble for not doing work and/or misbehavior. I think my misbehaviour was mostly a survival technique for work I didn't feel I could do or didn't want to do.

I am actually pretty smart and did very well in high school and beyond. I am well respected in my work place as a smart fellow. People do not beleive me when I tell them that I was almost thrown out of elementary school.

Well guys, whaddaya think?

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by ZemirosShabbos - 03 Oct 2011 15:58

hi reb Gibbor, a happy and uplifting 5772 to you.

another good and interesting topic you got there. here is a mareh mokom:

www.guardyoureyes.org/forum/index.php?topic=3440.0

other than that i don't have much to add and await the Big Lights of GYE to shine their 90,000 lumens-LED-light on this

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by gibbor120 - 03 Oct 2011 16:02

If it has not been declared yet, I make a motion to make ZS our official GYE librarian!

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by ZemirosShabbos - 03 Oct 2011 16:06

=====

====

Re: Home of Gibbor120

Posted by gibbor120 - 03 Oct 2011 16:07

This is not a normal library if you haven't noticed, just about anything goes... unless someone

=====
====

Re: Home of Gibbor120

Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 03 Oct 2011 16:32

Just my own 2 cents...

reports it to the moderator

I think the battle needs to be separated into Strategy and Tactics (i.e. long-term and short-term goals). It's important and good to understand the history and psychology of how our problems developed, but very often trying to use that knowledge to deflect a fantasy or acting-out at the moment is ineffective or even counter-productive.

Understanding how our childhood issues (in my case loneliness, shyness, lack of fatherly affection, etc.) can help us repair these things and in the long run may lessen the feelings and attractions that lead us to act out. but in the heat of the moment when i find myself staring or fantasizing i find that trying to give myself awhole speech about my inner child needing the love i never had etc. takes too long, and may just make me feel bad about myself and need it even more. I just have to tell myself "NO!!! I DON'T DO THAT ANYMORE!!!" and give myself a mental (and sometimes actual) slap in the face. And I just start thinking about my truck instead, it's almost 90 days and I don't want to crash and lose it all...

And as I like to say, these things are explanations, not excuses....

KOMT!!!!!!

Gevura!

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by gibbor120 - 03 Oct 2011 16:42

So, you are saying, for a general approach to growth (filling that void etc) - yes the reasons can help. But, out on the battle field - just KOT!

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by ZemirosShabbos - 03 Oct 2011 17:13

gibbor120 wrote on 03 Oct 2011 16:42:

So, you are saying, for a general approach to growth (filling that void etc) - yes the reasons can help. But, out on the battle field - just KOT!

that sounds like a good and wise approach, imho

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by gibbor120 - 05 Oct 2011 21:12

I'd like to add a point along the lines of something reb yid and others were discussing recnetly - labels. They can be debilitating if they are used as an excuse for failure. They can also be liberating if we realize that there are reasons for our past behaviour and we are not a failure.

Perhaps, here too, knowing that there are underlying reasons for our acting out can either be used to excuse it. Or it can be used to alleviate our feelings of guilt and yiyush, ultimately giving us strength to move on.

The part I'm still wondering about is, does it help in developing a recovery plan. Or is the recovery part the same no matter what the source of the problem is?

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by gibbor120 - 05 Oct 2011 21:13

Anyone notice I made HERO MEMBER 5 posts ago?! I only wish being a hero in real life was

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by bardichev - 05 Oct 2011 21:24

you are my hero hundreds of posts ago

=====
=====

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by gibbor120 - 05 Oct 2011 21:30

... and sometimes laugh til my gut hurts too .

=====
=====

that easy easy

Re: Home of Gibbor120
Posted by ZemirosShabbos - 05 Oct 2011 21:46

mazel Tov Gibbor!

=====
=====