Clean for about 5 minutes now, do I count today as 1 or 0?

(Yes I left out Guard on purpose).

Guard is not either around much anymore.

He may have a VERY good reason for being too busy. But the fact is that he hardly posts. (I don't fully believe that his being sooooo busy is the only reason why he doesn't spend much time here anymore. I think he became bored of this forum. Many others have. The issues & topics just about stay the same, over and over. This is why some of the others withered away.)

A big thank you to the founders of this site, and all of the other great people that give up their own time to give Chizuk to others. You have truly enhanced my life more than I could have possibly imagined and I can never thank you enough.

See?

Now he is called the FOUNDER of the site!

That is to Guard's eternal credit!!!

..... Because at the core, You are rotten!

..... if I don't stop writing serious posts, I'm going to ruin my reputation here.

Me3 wrote on 25 Jan 2010 21:09:

My point wasn't to call you rotten, that you know.

(Meldramatic, No?)

Sad the only people left from when I started here (at least on the men's side (Hi Letakain and 7up) are Dov and Kedusha, wish it was only Dov. (Yes I left out Guard on purpose).

I can identify with that. [I registered here only a month before you, and have seen the forum undergo lots of changes].

The question is, WHAT CAN YOU DO!

I guess.

I was responding to this- guess that wasn't so clear. I meant, its not so much an issue of how long it takes or how long one is on the forum. The main thing is that one remains on the path of working toward recovery.

When I read this forum and I see the people who are struggling with themselves and yet so quick to offer chizuk to others, people who are so careful not to write anything that could trigger somebody else, etc. All I can think is "Ribono Shel Olam, how special is your nation that even those who have fallen so low are so very high"

Gmar Chasima Tova to all.

For what it is worth me3, your lines brought a smile to my face. Well, you did say the truth, that is funny, we are addicts, we are humans and then we write as if we were Moshe. Heavy stuff.

That is funny, when you look at it... Sort of cool.

I gotta be honest (it's in the 12 step contract) though, you get real help sometimes from those, that you would really least expect (from the old lady who can hardly walk, from the bus driver, from an idiot who can't even cross the street). Real life savers - that is from my life.

That is good sometimes, cos it means that we can be life savers too in some situation. For real, even though. Sort of a gift from Hashem.

Thanks for your words, because of them I didn't fall.

Not sure what you're so proud about, besides for Bards and Dov the top 10 is all a bunch of women.

Me3 wrote on 09 Oct 2011 22:17:

First of all you guys can't be the "Top guys" because that would be me, obviously.

Me3 wrote on 10 Oct 2011 13:29:

If you were really a Top guy you would know.
