A day of honesty:

We had a financially (very) stressful week but the yad hashem apparent so many times.

We did not see what we thought we wanted, but it was clear at the end that Hakadosh Baruch Hu was running the the show from backstage. A tough pill to swallow but really happy that I did.

Good Shabbos

I realized today that I instinctively turn to lust when I feel scared or vulnerable...

Knowing in advance is very helpful

I think I read that we don't turn to lust; lust turns us!

Chevra,

i haven't post in a while so here's the update.

Bh things are going well. not lusting, minimal slipping.

The chiddush is that I've been under massive stress the past few weeks. I kept on davening as I felt like I would explode from the pressure: (paraphrased) Hashem there is no way I can beat the lust monsters on my own. All the triggers are here. A little while back I would automatically cave in and feed my addiction. I recognize that I simply don't have the koach to fight them.

PLEASE help me.

These pleading have probably been the most sincere expression of being powerless that I've ever articulated. I really really felt powerless.

...And with HKBH's help, I stayed clean

Hi Chevra.

I had some bad slips over the past few days.

Recommitting to enjoying the good clean life.

Updated my taphsic (which had expired).

i think the whole problem is in your truck

i noticed it has only one single cannon

what about if the enemy comes from behind? or from sideways?

i think if you sort that out you will have much longer clean streaks

Just kidding. As I mentioned to you in our chat. i had not completely updated my taphsic, which i did later.

Contribution factors:

no exercise for two week, exhaustion
