

Yaakov's Ladder

Posted by Pidaini - 08 Mar 2013 17:33

Starting my log a little late, i'm BH holding by today, which is number 53 of all the todays, but Bein Hazmanim is coming and i need to keep in check, and might not have time for all the chatting that ussually helps me clear my mind (thanks guys!!).

i've been using AlexEliezers advice, that he gave me right when i first posted, of bulletproof Shemiras Einayim, or trying at least, and BH got to Today. but it's all changing now, it's not the same streets that i walk down every day, know exactly where to go so not to look, the dangerous places where i have to be careful etc.

now i'm entering the lions den, going to the airport, the airport itself, a few hours on the plane, etc. it's really scaring me!!

anyone have any ideas?

also been struggling with dreams, i know it shouldn't affect me, but it does, because it makes me realize that my mind isn't clean during the day, which leads to the next question how to keep my mind clean?

Wishing all you a Great Shabbos and it's Parshas Hachodesh so may we all be zoche to renew ourselves!!

Glad it was "only" a fall in the snow. Hope you're OK.

KOWCITS!!

Or if he got new shteivel, he would be able to walk on the ice without slipping.

Or if I would stop chatting at night, go to sleep normal time, and not catch strep, then I wouldn't need to go to the doctor and walk back home and be on the icy sidewalks, then I wouldn't fall!!

people here are being annoying and trying to be funny. A fall is not something to be taken lightly.

the injuries were non-life-threatening and yankel is a guy who can take a joke (maybe)

One of my biggest fears is snow and ice. I cannot bear it. I'm watching the weather forecast now and they've said it might snow this week. I'm already starting to feel sick.

I hate the snow and ice. I have a real fear of slipping and falling and hurting myself. I used to slip and fall and bounce. Then when I fell I started breaking things (mainly myself) and now since I've ruined my spine and had the operations, I'm terrified of falling and ending up in a wheelchair. It could happen.

For years I couldn't leave the house when it snowed, I'd call in sick at work and just ride it out. Then I was given a pair of those ice grippers which genuinely changed my life and I could leave the house again. But I'm still frightened to go out, especially by myself. I know the chances of me falling are vastly reduced with the grippers, but if I'm out by myself there's a real, genuine fear that I'll topple over and really hurt myself.

If it doesn't snow this week then it might happen next week. It's pretty much guaranteed to happen at some point over the next few wintery months. The thought fills me with horror. No really. I know like half the nation I should dance with joy, get the sledge out and start building a snowman, but really that's not for me.

You can keep your snow; you can keep your ice. I'll stay inside and keep warm and safe if I can. I'm slowly getting my nerve up, it's a vast improvement on where I used to be and how I used to panic at the very thought. I still feel sick though, horribly sick. It's "snow joke."

You should move to Israel. It (almost) never snows there.
