

Day 20.

Posted by R76 - 21 Oct 2013 03:58

Not that hard. I hope I can keep motivation.

The main obstacles are loneliness and depression.

Guard....3 out of his last 5 posts have mentioned 'hope.'

We don't hope around here.

Hope is replaced with actions.

It does seem, however, that whatever it is that you are doing is working, so keep at it brother.

Barcu Hashem!!

Fortunately at 37 my drive is not as strong as it was at 20.

Also licorice tablets + Valerian seem to work.

Thanks. I still have very many problems and moderately severe depression and Asperger's Syndrome. Are there any Jewish forums dealing with personal issues in general?

Day 95. Yochanan the High Priest served in that office for 80 years and at the end of his life became a Sadducee [Brochos 29a].

Day 117. I hope to stay away from my addiction at least until I see my therapist. He is also an Orthodox Jew and he can advice me on some medicine to further reduce my drive.
