

My 90-Day Journey

Hey Everyone,

Thanks, already, for the outpouring of support and motivation! I'm five days into this haul, and still very motivated.

My first thoughts (read: anxieties) moving forward, however, are related to what happens when this initial dopamine rush of optimism fades, as rushes are wont to do. We all know, especially as men with addictive and obsessive personalities, that there's a biochemical fix associated with new and exciting things. The GYE journey, for me, now, is new and exciting. But what happens after ten days, twenty days, B"H...90 days? I'm beginning to see the wisdom in the old adage, one day at a time. But I'm also eager to benefit from the erudition of the veteran (and freshman) tzadikim here on GYE.

Thank you so much!

Thank you so much, guys! It certainly is a double blessing. It's also a blessing to be part of such a supportive, loving brotherhood. I couldn't do this without you (and HaShem, of course)!

And Unanumun, I'd be honored if our sons became friends! Who knows? We might very well be neighbors!

this whole concept of letting go...is still kind of hard to grasp

No pun intended?

Avoiding puns on this site, both intentional and unintentional, is proving quite challenging!

0% Tolerance/100% Self Forgiveness.

Just checking in... I'm sorry I've been away from the forums for so long. I'm still working on my struggle, and optimistic, despite my various falls.

I kept up faithfully with the 90 days chart; I've just been absent from the forums. I feel like my priorities were the opposite of what they should have been. But here I am!

nice to see you trucking along

give us some advice

what has helped you in your journey?

Thanks, Shmeichel!

I haven't exactly racked up the clean days to justify giving any advice except, stay tied to this site (or your support group, or your sponsor, etc.), as much as possible. I failed a lot during this last hiatus, at times, everyday. But I updated my chart assiduously, without fail. At times -- and this might not necessarily be a good thing -- my fail-and-update-the-chart pattern became a rote, mindless habit, something I did as a matter of routine. But I'm back here updating my status, reading the emails, browsing the forums. And obviously, that's a very good thing.

Hey Cordnoy,

The emails go to a separate account, and in my half-committed mind-set, I avoided going to that account all together. I'm going to do my best not to make that mistake again, and stay on top of them.
