

Jwtrplet3s Ups and Downs

Posted by jwtrplet3 - 14 Aug 2014 00:51

Hey! I posted my story on the SSA forum but I recently started the 90-day journey and I am at 30 days.

My fetish was starting to control my life so I wanted to try to stop, both putting on things and searching online. Its hard because this stuff is rampant daily and its hard to keep my eyes to myself. I stayed on GYE daily and chatted excessively to help my goal and keep myself occupied. However, this led to my downfall because my chats became a little too graphic when I explained my tayvah leading me to get kicked off gye chatroom. It was hard for me to deal with feeling alone and tried to reach out to others on gmail. However, one guy I reached out to, who seemed very helpful, just helped feed both our tayvos with chat and we had to block each other in the end of the day since our tayvos were rising.

I have BH not put anything on (except with my wife with tashmish) and have pretty much not searched (once or twice I got onto a website but quickly turned it off).

hi friend

I think highly of you for trying again to post.

and we all make mistakes, the question is can we learn from them what to avoid, keep on posting.

Thanks for inspiring me through your persistence to recover.

Keep posting, especially that it seems less triggering for you than private conversation with another guy.

May Hashem be with you, Jay Dubya!

Sounds like you may be focusin' on them a bit too much.

Perhaps.

Try livin' for the next five or ten minutes without 'em.

Can you do that?

For yourself.

The end results are good to hear as well.

We are lookin' forward to hearin' actions that you have taken to avoid the desire.

In the 12-step process, we accept the fact that we have these desires; it is what happens immediately afterwards that are the tools of our trade.

Well...it was a matter of time before it happenned

I searched for my haircut fetish online and found pictures.

Im assuming that meets the definition of falling.

Nothin' to be sorry about.

it was somethin' we chatted about.

This should be done in an email or a pm, but meanwhile..... which word can you omit that would still say the same thing to us?

my email again is: thenewme613@hotmail.com

Regardin' a fall, there has been tens of discussions on this.

My opinion, which is not necessarily accordin' to the rules, is that you should set yourself a line that you dare not cross. For many, it is masturbation; for others, it may be viewin' porn; for even others, it might be clickin' on a non-tzniusdike picture.

GYE's rules are not like this, and if you're followin' those, then fine...look at the rules.

that's just my take.

I hear u but I guess i did cross the line by looking at non-tzniusdik pics (according to my standards)

I just dnt know if i should click the fall button or not
