Thank you all.

As I am planning to fly my stomach is clinging about the challenge of shmiras eineyim that comes with this trip, such as airport, on flight, and in Israel or in meron.

Anyone has any advice on it?

Sur may'rah Vasei Tov

Make up your mind that you won't be curious with your eyes even on those things which are mutar.

As well bring a couple of sefaring/books - on simple topics that you like. This will keep your eyes and mind on other things.

Every moment you are seeing/thinking appropriate things you are building worlds.

Appreciate your accomplishments.

One thing is for me very hard, that my wife does not know of all this.

I am very close to her. Don't have anyone closer to me than her. We are life partners. The fact is that I am challenging a battle. This challenge is one that was till now on the side. What ever I wanted I did , more or less. Now that I am struggling this and facing it, it is not easy. I need her support, I need the feeling from her like wow you are doing gr8. On all my and her challenges up to now we support each other. Now to this challenge I am single!!!!

I get support from some anonymous friends.

I come home and want to tell her: sweetie can you believe it I am at day 49! If I do so, she will be so down that it will take weeks to repair it some words, however, of yours got me to thinkin'.....why do you need her support? for her, or for you? step four and five are all about realizin' that many addicts are very into thinkin' about themselves....I need, my pride, I want, my ego, etc. I know this is true by me. Just sayin'....

The feelin' in certain parts is found by many.

An oft found concept on this site is that we keep running away from reality. Whether it's stress, anger, boredom, or restlessness that causes us to run off to the comfort of our vice, it is by all accounts an escape. The more we hide, the easier it is to fall back into the darkness of our souls. We need to expose the vampire of our addiction to the bright light of reality. By being honest with ourselves, our spouses (if possible, practical, and not just a selfish excuse to burden our wives with it), and/or our Rabbeim and mentors, it makes it much easier to recognize the foolishness for what it is.

Boruch Hashem I am at day 61! This my longest streak since my struggle started. I am proud and very thankful to hashem, I am proud and thankful to GYE.

the fact is, that when I started out my 90 day journey i was pretty sure that i wont make it too long. I was ready to start the 90 day, even if i fall, it is worth each and every day that i will be sober. I was convinced that masturbating is a nature of human kind, and everyone does it. The question is just how many times we do it. I couldn't understand how we are forbidden from doing a thing that it is impossible from keeping ourselves from doing it. Therefore i decided that the most we are obligated to do is ti try to minimize it as much as possible.

As i am working through the 90 day trail, day by day, i feel that i am evolving. I feel that my conclusions are changing to the better. I have lots of work to work on myself, but I do see how foolish I was, that i was thinking that way.

I am looking forward to stay clean. keep reminding myself to work day by day, and with Hashems help move forward to the better.

Thank you all GYE members.
