Good day, today is my 3rd day being apart of this amazing community i just want to share something that happened to me last night that hasn't happened in the longest time.

I was going to a store to pick something up and as i was walking from mt car to the store i noticed out of the corner of my eye a women walking towards the store from another direction. All of the sudden a thought came into my head that hasnt for the longest time that i should keep my eyes facing the ground rather then looking up and seeing my surroundings. BH i was misgaber and was shomer my eyes from looking around and i felt like a million bucks. Thanks to GYE i have been able to get back to this point just by having it on my mind!!!!!
