

Ups and downs

Posted by Einshomyeush - 29 Sep 2019 21:07

Thank Gd I have been doing better than ever these past few weeks. I was going strong and passing every urge that came my way. However over the past few days I've been getting hit pretty hard and feeling stressed out. I can use some advice on how to navigate since I fear that I might be slipping up.

I have this little sentence in mind when stress is becoming strong : "No any situation is so dreadful, and lust will always make it worse, not better".

And keeping in mind that stress will fade, also.

Mindfulness is very big helper also : when you start to observe how do you react under stress, and you see that always this old scratched disk start automatically to play...

Curious, how does mindfulness help with overwhelming stress that seems to have no solution? Example - a bill is due to be paid and the money simply is not there. Of course acting out does not pay the bill either.....
