I'm feeling some desire now to masturbate. I'm learning on my own this afternoon, but can't really focus, and these thoughts are coming into my head and distracting me

Perhaps think how happy you will be when you look back tomorrow and see how amazed you are with yourself, and what you managed to achieve in a generation like ours.....

You can do it.... if not for your sake then at least for all of us here at GYE

Right now I'm at 50, you're at 80

Hopefully I'll never catch you up!

The goings hard, but let's remember that we can live without this, and continue our lives happily in other pursuits.

Please let me know your thoughts and suggestionsUpdate to my current situation:

I'm holding at day 80 (for the first time BH). I'm headed home from yeshiva on day 89(next Tuesday). I want to make sure I'm prepared when I do.

Challenges:

- 1) There are unfiltered devices at home, I will have a lot of free time at home
- 2) I'm leaving a sheltered yeshiva environment (there's no sems nearby... It's very sheltered), and I'm going back to a regular community, where I will have family friends round for lunch etc. This sort of thing made my masturbation struggle hard for a while. (I'm not so concerned that I'll be hanging out with girls, although I might have to avoid certain events)
- 3)(Not so much on my radar, and less of a concern, but it's coming up in a few months nonetheless) I'm going to be in a secular environment next year

My goals(short/mid term)

- 1) Make it to shabbos at home, clean
- 2) Make it to day 100 clean
- 3) Make it to July 31st clean
- 4) Make it to motsei Yom Kippur clean (might need some intermediate goals before this)

My plan (a work in progress)

- 1) I'm currently set a goal with a mentor for day 100, and I get a reward if I stay clean until then
- 2) I'm part of the challenge on the forum, I have to pay ~$70(I need to double check what I signed up for) if I act out before July 31st
- 3) Possibly setting a goal to not use unfiltered devices at home, and paying a knas if I do. I'm not sure how realistic this is for me, and if I'll be able to keep to it. I'm considering making it no mobile devices that I can take to the bathroom.

4) Plan out my days well. I have a lot of learning to do over the summer, but not sure how much of a break I'll need. I need to prepare for university, and also I want to catch up with the exercise I've been neglecting in yeshiva

The plans seems very monetary based. I'm not sure if this is the best idea, I don't have source of income, and also I don't know how much I'm going to change myself, if I just looking at the bottom line, I don't want to become numb to monetary goals. I'm not sure if I've described this well, but I think guys have struggled with this on the forum before.

?Accountability

I think I'll continue writing on the forum. I don't know if I'll gradually wind down

I'm in contact daily by email with a mentor.

I'm in contact with a guy from gye every day or 2 by message.

I spoke to a friend in person about this struggle, I might speak to him soon if I'm holding in a good place.

Your clarity of mind is incredible. We all wish many were like you. People like you are going to be on front lines to greet Moshiach.

Dear LTI,

?I am totally mesmerized by your commitment and wanting to keep clean.

You mentioned that you will be going to university in a secular environment. As, I have gone to college and universities both before and after I got married I would like to suggest to you the following.

1. It is important to know where your classes are. meaning if you know where you are going the you won't have an issue looking at people or things on your way.
2. Not sure what your major is, but in many classes part of the class is group work. I always tried making groups with males if possible. Sometimes, it cant be done.
3. try to make gedarim around yourself. Like I would do my best not sit next to girls. I also would sit in the front row. I would ask lots of questions. Because of that I would also answer lots of questions which made me look smart. Lots of students asked me questions. Which I answered.
4. Know what season it is. I dont know where you live, or where you are going to university, but now that it is the summer and you will be going in the fall. it will still be hot outside and many women will still be dressing in their summer attire. BTW, on university campuses people tend to dress less classy, so over the year people still might wear whatever they want.

5. Not sure which campus you are going to, but there will for sure be a Chabad or Hillel or both on your campus. Get to know the rabbi's

Being in a secular environment is tough. It could also be full of triggers, but I could tell you one thing. if you need to be there, it be very rewarding in shmiras einayim.

Just to let you in on a secret. Whenever I was careful in my shmiras eynayim/ bris I did extremely well in my courses. Whenever I wasnt, I did poorly.

You could PM me for more if you want.

It's 'easy' to write a long post like this during my break, but I don't really think I'm gonna be able to stay clean. I'm doubting myself that I'll be able to do it

My dear friend, I'm so happy for you that you've made it to 80 days clean. Such a tremendous accomplishment!

I would recommend celebrating day 88/89 before you return home and use it for hischazkus.

And then do smaller goals when home, like getting to day 90, then celebrating etc.

Something to consider is making a rule to not use any unfiltered device and if u need to for some reason you'll text/WhatsApp a GYE guy first and tell him when ur finished.

Im so happy for you that you spoke with a friend in person about this.

You're a true Ben Torah and Ben Aliya.

With much admiration and love,

YeshivaGuy

Thank you, I appreciate your positive comments

I have to disagree, I don't want to be overly optimistic, because of my ignorance of where I'm holding. I think I'm being realistic/ maybe a bit pessimistic, but not ignorant of myself.
