

My journey, Trust Issues, Saw Sexual Abuse

Posted by Mikegtoday - 05 Oct 2021 10:42

---

I witnessed A very respected Yeshiva guy be intimate with 1 person ( high schooler) and abuse many others emotionally. I later found out that he was actually intimate with over 10 high schoolers.

At the time, I was not sure what to do when I witnessed what I saw, my concern was ?telling the right person and that this person should be helped and kids saved.

?After a few months, as I saw the issue getting worse, I decided to talk to one of the most respected people in the yeshiva. He said and I quote "if there are no witnesses other than just you then there is nothing I can do about it, and he also challenged the validity of my story, as I mentioned it was a very respected Yeshiva guy who was doing this ( I did not say the name, as I felt only to do so if he asked).

This Yeshiva guy was aware that I knew something was wrong, and to protect his name he made up lies and stories about me. He was very smart and manipulative, and realized that if he can get others to question me he would survive.

I went to therapists during this time, and to my dismay they did not believe me because the Rabbis did not believe me. It was so lonely, so sad, angry, confused and lost basic trust.

Fast forward - the truth did come out, and he was intimate with a few High schoolers, and over 50 campers and teens felt emotionally abused and many left Yiddishkeit.

?It was real bothersome and became clear that other rebbbeim also knew and saw very similar behavior but decided for their own benefit of staying away and not getting involved ...

I began to question mesorah. If because of bias these people who were teaching me about gd, could not see what was very clear to them how could I believe their teaching about gd? Maybe this too was taught with much bias??

I believe this anger, resentment, and feeling soo alone has triggered my addiction. I so much want to let go and forgive, but the remnants of this period of time keep on effecting me and triggering feelings which then increase and enable my need for connection/my addiction ...

=====

Re: My journey, Trust Issues, Saw Sexual Abuse
Posted by Mikegtoday - 07 Oct 2021 04:20

---

Thank you for taking the time and interest to comment, your care is appreciated - and so the example of Yosef - I can appreciate the amazing strength that he had ..

=====

Re: My journey, Trust Issues, Saw Sexual Abuse
Posted by Mikegtoday - 07 Oct 2021 04:23

---

Thank you for taking the time and interest to comment, your care is appreciated - I am interested in your experience using this site and what gave you the most chizuk

=====

Re: My journey, Trust Issues, Saw Sexual Abuse
Posted by ihadstringsbutnowimfree - 10 Oct 2021 15:03

---

Thank you for posting your story. I can definitely relate to some of the feelings you wrote about, even though the situation is different.

At the end of the day, you can be satisfied that you made the right decision. It may not have been the outcome that you wanted, but you still did the right thing. It doesn't take away the negative affects it has had on your life and those affected by the abuser, but you still did the right thing, and that's something to be proud of. You acted in the right way, even though others did not. So you're not just Yosef...you're Pinchas!

=====

=====

Re: My journey, Trust Issues, Saw Sexual Abuse
Posted by YeshivaGuy - 07 Nov 2021 07:08

---

Hey just now saw this thread.

You are not responsible for what happened to those kids. It is the fault of the perpetrator and of the therapist/"rabbis" who didn't care enough about children being slaughtered in school.

I highly recommend going to therapy, unless you already are.

Hatzlocha

=====

=====

Re: My journey, Trust Issues, Saw Sexual Abuse
Posted by anonymous.lost.everything - 07 Nov 2021 10:14

---

Ish MiGrodno wrote on 07 Oct 2021 03:38:

My heart goes out to you and the abused bochurim. Please remember that you are on a forum that consists of real people who are proud carriers of the Mesorah. The fact that we have committed aveiros is overshadowed by our honesty in dealing with them; the fakers you described are the exact opposite and are hardly recognizable as sharing our religion.

Keep inspiring us with your rare bitachon and strength!

Proudly Grodnian - IMG

I completely disagree with the distinction that was made here between the fakers and the proud carriers of the mesorah. The point is precisely that we have lots of proud carriers of the mesorah who are knee-deep in sex addiction and rationalizations. That is precisely the point. It's also important to understand that sex addiction is a disease, and also that they really are proud of the mesorah.

This is hard to accept for people who think that sex addiction is not a real disease, that the world is made up of tzadikim and reshaim, and that someone who did a ton of p&m or abuse people can "do tshuva" and switch from rasha to tzadik.

I have already met two other frum people in SA and a rosh yeshiva told me that he thinks 80% of bochrim have had access to hardcore material, and I'm not hopeful. People have to understand that we have a systemic problem. We make new sex addicts every day and we don't even know we're doing it. It's not an accident.

=====

Re: My journey, Trust Issues, Saw Sexual Abuse
Posted by wilnevergiveup - 07 Nov 2021 15:36

---

anonymous.lost.everything wrote on 07 Nov 2021 10:14:

Ish MiGrodno wrote on 07 Oct 2021 03:38:

My heart goes out to you and the abused bochurim. Please remember that you are on a forum that consists of real people who are proud carriers of the Mesorah. The fact that we have committed aveiros is overshadowed by our honesty in dealing with them; the fakers you described are the exact opposite and are hardly recognizable as sharing our religion.

Keep inspiring us with your rare bitachon and strength!

Proudly Grodnian - IMG

I completely disagree with the distinction that was made here between the fakers and the proud carriers of the mesorah. The point is precisely that we have lots of proud carriers of the mesorah who are knee-deep in sex addiction and rationalizations. That is precisely the point. It's also important to understand that sex addiction is a disease, and also that they really are proud of the mesorah.

This is hard to accept for people who think that sex addiction is not a real disease, that the world is made up of tzadikim and reshaim, and that someone who did a ton of p&m or abuse people can "do tshuva" and switch from rasha to tzadik.

I have already met two other frum people in SA and a rosh yeshiva told me that he thinks 80% of bochrim have had access to hardcore material, and I'm not hopeful. People have to understand that we have a systemic problem. We make new sex addicts every day and we don't even know we're doing it. It's not an accident.

I think you completely misunderstood the point. Fakers don't mean sex addicts and "proud carriers of the mesora", non addicts.

...is overshadowed by our honesty in dealing with them...

The fakers are the ones who don't deal with the issues and the proud guys are the ones who do. The wonder was that even though some of them are dealing with the addiction themselves they still have the strength to stand up for what's right as opposed to the fakers who prefer to just ignore them.

=====

Re: My journey, Trust Issues, Saw Sexual Abuse
Posted by Ish MiGrodno - 07 Nov 2021 16:54

---

Thanks, WNGU.

Rabbeinu A.L.E. Shlit"a,

I literally have no idea what you are talking about. How on earth does the fact that someone is clinically addicted - justify his unwillingness to address his issue? Unless you are referring to someone suffering from psychosis, your opinion is foreign and completely unfamiliar to me. (And even if you tell me that many perps are trapped in the veil of secrecy / embarrassment that our society has created...that is irrelevant to a "carrier of our mesorah..")

Oh, and also, I don't appreciate the accusation that my post represents an oversimplification of the world as consisting of tzadikim and reshaim. Don't worry - I've been around the block (I deal with bochurim on a daily basis) and I can appreciate a nuance or two. And (as I believe that many of my close friends here on GYE can attest to) I try super hard not to engage in "fly by platitudes" so you can rest assured that I always give thought before I post (as I believe you do as well).

With friendship and respect; yet thoroughly confused in Grodno ~ IMG

=====
=====

Re: My journey, Trust Issues, Saw Sexual Abuse
Posted by Markz - 08 Nov 2021 00:00

---

Ish MiGrodno wrote on 07 Nov 2021 16:54:

Thanks, WNGU.

Rabbeinu A.L.E. Shlit"a,

I literally have no idea what you are talking about. How on earth does the fact that someone is clinically addicted - justify his unwillingness to address his issue? Unless you are referring to someone suffering from psychosis, your opinion is foreign and completely unfamiliar to me. (And even if you tell me that many perps are trapped in the veil of secrecy / embarrassment that our society has created...that is irrelevant to a "carrier of our mesorah..")

Oh, and also, I don't appreciate the accusation that my post represents an oversimplification of the world as consisting of tzadikim and reshaim. Don't worry - I've been around the block (I deal with bochurim on a daily basis) and I can appreciate a nuance or two. And (as I believe that many of my close friends here on GYE can attest to) I try super hard not to engage in "fly by platitudes" so you can rest assured that I always give thought before I post (as I believe you do as well).

With friendship and respect; yet thoroughly confused in Grodno ~ IMG

I think rabbi ALE misunderstood your post as a comment about Lustaholics, when you actually meant to simply stand up against anyone being negative to Yeshivaguy.

=====