

Approaching 60 days

Posted by Lamplighter - 23 Dec 2009 19:05

Holy Yidden, this is my first time posting in this Wall of Honor forum category. After nearly eight months of being clean (refraining from being motzi zera while awake), I fell on 10 Cheshvan. I still can't believe I did that considering how hard I worked all those months beforehand. Not to absolve my actions, but it's like I was overcome by this crazy force, Mr. Satan. There's no other way to explain it considering how far I came until that point. I have been clean now since 11 Cheshvan, almost 60 days and I am absolutely, ENTIRELY determined to never commit this serious aveira again yet I still know that I can never get complacent and think I have this thing beat, that's it's all behind me, since I fell after being clean for a lot longer than 60 days before.

I have been in your situation many times. Does that tell you anything (Besides that I'm a raving pessimist)?

You need to go through the steps that have been set up by those who are 10 YEARS clean!!

Look man, I don't want you to have to go through what I did, so take my advice instead of learning first hand, IT DOESN'T GO AWAY!! YOU CAN ONLY PUSH IT OFF!!

I have been clean for up to a year, and all it took was the right situation and 10 seconds and I fell again.

You need a stronger defense than simply the time behind you!!!

Read the handbook and read it again, then read it a 3rd time. Figure out which steps you'll take, and get an accountability partner. You don't have to do this for life, it's just to shlep you out of the pit. Your standing with your head above the ground so you think your out completely, TRUST ME DUDE, save yourself a lot of anguish and follow through with one of the recovery programs they have here.

In the future, the big book will have Bardys icon on the cover, and the entire book will be reduced to 3 words: KEEP ON TRUCK'N

I do realize the meaning, and that's why I'm saying it. Who's joking anyway?
