So that's the right one and will it be good for me to listen to?

It's the one I was reffering to. I'm not engaged or married (or even dating) yet, so I haven't listened o it.

OK so we reached 200 days. One day at a time. I didn't post anything in a while and nobody asked about me. I was hoping there would be some peer pressure to stay on and keep everyone updated but it seems like I can just disappear from GYE and do who knows what and nobody will even ask about me. Have a gr8 and clean Shabbos everyone.

Sorry you feel that way. Maybe we are all praying for you, and are confident that while getting ready for your wedding, you are busy with good things and positivity. We love you, even in our silence.

Wishing you an amazing Yom tov and great sweet new year!

200 days is amazing!

it probably feels amazing walking into Rosh Hashanah clean!

Much continued success!

I can only speak for myself, when I see a thread that's not been updated in a while, I'm just scared of pushing someone more than they can handle at the moment. If you want to pushed, then, maybe I had the wrong attitude

Hi. Just saw your post. Sorry that you went unnoticed for a while. It is demoralizing when that happens. ly"h as you continue doing great, you will discover the challenge of trying to keep tabs on all the guys here. Your comment though is well taken. Maybe GYE could appoint someone who has a bit more time to keep an eye out for this.... Hatzlocha!

BH WE APPROACH YOM KIPPUR WITH 7 MONTHS CLEAN!

During World War 2 when the Mirrer Yeshiva was in Shanghai for Yom Kippur the weather was extremely hot. The bochurim davened without their hats and jackets and many even fainted from the intense heat. However one person seemed to be oblivious to it all and that was their Mashgiach Rav Chatzkel Levenstein Zatsal. He was wearing his frock and davening with as much kavana as if he would be in a comfortable room! The bochurim decided to surprise him. Rav Chatzkel used to daven very long and instructed the bochurim not to wait. After the fast the bochurim ate a little and went back to the Beis Medrash to learn while Rav Chatzkel was still davening Ne'ila. When he turned around he saw them and was very moved, he spoke to them as follows. "There was once a rich man who built himself a beautiful palace and decided to invite the whole town to the Chanukas Habayis. During the ceremony he would put an exquisite ornament on the very top! The great day arrives and this fellow is at the top when suddenly he loses his balance and falls into the mud! After regaining consciousness he starts screaming MY PALACE FELL! MY PALACE FELL! Someone comes over and tells him you must be a little confused still your palace didn't fall you fell. Brush yourself off and see for yourself. So too said Rav Chatzkel, we just had a Major Yom Kippur with all the Mesirus Nefesh and everyone is inspired but in the future things may not always go so great, but always remember this Yom Kippur we built a mansion EVEN IF WE FALL IN THE MUD THE PALACE IS STILL THERE FOR WHEN WE BRUSH OURSELVES OFF! Perhaps we had some streaks of success this past year but fell, just remember YOU BUILT YOURSELF A PALACE WHICH WILL NEVER EVER GET DESTROYED NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS! GEMAR CHASSIMA TOVA!

Hi does anyone know of any clean racing games that can be used with the Logitech g920? www.logitechg.com/en-us/products/driving/driving-force-racing-wheel.html has a list of supported games.
