I just went through a strong nissayon. I am in the same story as others on here. I have TVs playing all around me, I can easily listen-in to the programming (mostly news), and I can freely change the channel to anything socially acceptable, without worrying about a chilul hashem. I have constant internet access, and can freely see enough enticing pictures to satisfy my YH (even with server restrictions).

But I sat down in-front of a open tv, closed my eyes and said just about the same thing as 7up quoted from R Azriel Tauber. I feel powerfully close to hashem. I'm still weak, I can still fall in an hour. But as I write this, I said a shor tefilah for help. Thanx RAGE, 7up, and I forgot the name of the new guy but thanx.

8 days clean

8 days is great. Its "lema'ala min hatevah", above natural. You see, we can go above what nature tells us we cant do!

Keep it up!

Good point, Yiddle - and SA, that's fantastic!

It's easy to be inspired, but it's much harder to actually internalize what we here, and use it when we're faced with a nisayon!

Nature runs within a MaArechet a framework of 7:

7 colors in the solar spectrum

Light defracts into 7 colors (red,orange,yellow,green,blue,indego,violet)

The world was created in 7 days (shabbos is the completion, and thus an inherent part of the creation)

The week is 7 days long, and this is globally recognised, throughout time there are seven musical notes

Koheles utilises the word hevel 7 times,

In tefilah (karbanos) we day "leolah Yehai Adam... Mah Anu, Meh Chayainu..." we utilize this statement 7 times (see R schwab on tefilah) corresponding to the 7 times it's used in kohelet.

I can't think of a 7th example of the number 7 (mybe a 7 month baby, who is never delivered late, whereas a 9 month can be born even in the 10th month so the 9 is more arbitrary)

There are 8 days of chanukah

8 days to the milah

I can't think of any more examples

But does anyone know any maharal of 9 ?

9 days clean

Well BH I'm coming into shabbos with a beutifull clean streak. a new way of life. I no longer seek to bury my troubles in shmutz, hirhurim, and zera levatala. I had a nissayon today for 10 minutes strait. All i needed to do was NOT FIGHT for a second, and my bodies natural reaction would have brought me to.... I'm at a loss for a lashon naki -kishuy ever. But I faught, and withheld my muscles, I stayed still and held my breath. And baruch Hashem it finnaly passed,

I think that since my recent addiction relapse has been pretty short, the effects of dry-ing out are pretty mild. I was "trying" (wishing) to stay clean for the last few weeks, but I kept falling after a few days. But even so, I think that the effort during that perioud of time, IS helping lessen the withdrawal symptoms this time around.

To all my future fans, coaches, chearleaders, and of course the peanut gallery. START

FOLLOWING MY THREAD. But I won't take insult if it takes some time, for you guys to come-around. Oh and please repond, anything, just so I know people are watching me (aside from looking at the 'veiw count')

That means you said the lashon without saying it, but said it nevertheless.

("Ms. Lucy" is a song like that, with all the bad words at the end of each verse as well as starting the next verse so it officially doesn't count as cursing.)

B"H I'm still holding in alot of my old learning. You guys have no-idea where I am, nor can I post it without identifying myself. But I'm an addict with a drive. I will do the 12 steps, I will stay clean, I will make GUARD smile, and I will prepare myself for a marriage free of lust! And I will work on it one hour at a time, one day at a time, and I will B"H keep posting here!

I will make GUARD smile

And Hashem, and yourself!

Remind yourself, when you see all those temptations, how lucky you are not to be caught up in all that garbage!
