A Gut Vocht to the Wall of Honor,

I'm proudly on day 20 right now, inching in on my previous streak of day 26. When you get into a longer streak like this you start to think that you're healed rather than being in the midst of a healing process. I would like to remind myself that I am still in the middle of a healing process and need to fight more than ever.

I wanted to post now because I have symptoms of an impending slip which include boredom, mild stress because of an assignment for graduate school that I need to do, etc. So thanks for being there so I can vent a little bit because motzei Shabbos is sometimes a test filled night for this nisayon.
