

Eye.nonymous (Elyah) official count

I'm new to this forum, but not new to this struggle. I signed up to the weekly E-mail lists a few months ago. I often just glance at them, as I'm trying not to spend so much time reading E-mails. But, even with this, I have gotten chizuk through the themes that keep repeating themselves.

I grew up secular, but did Teshuva in college--I came to Yeshiva in Israel and never left. Now I'm married with five children (our oldest is eight and our youngest is a month old).

I was in the habit of staring at girls, I remember even in nursery school. I just liked the way they looked. Things got worse when I was 10 or 11. My sisters had a "facts of life" book with indecent pictures and crooked ideas, and I found it. It described Mast... as a fun thing to do, and so I followed the instructions. I've been stuck ever since.

I was a member of a shul youth group around the age of my bar-mitzvah. The youth group leader gained my trust very early on, and I could discuss anything with him. Luckily, I learned early on that mast... is wrong. I've been fighting it ever since, sometimes more successfully and sometimes less so. I think now I go two or three months clean, and then I tend to trip up a few times close together. I always feel that the yeitzer hara tricked me, and somehow it's strategy was different than last time. Also, I view it as tripping up for one "phase," instead of multiple times. So, I manage not to get too depressed about it, and can pick myself up again pretty quickly.

I would like to be able to stop altogether. But, I am more concerned with controlling my eyes. I feel that it is impossible to walk down the street without taking a look at every woman along the way. I think the trickiest part is that, in my neighborhood, everyone is dressed so tznius that it's hard to feel that I'm really doing anything wrong.

Besides that, I slip up every once in a while with the internet--probably a few times a year. But then, I feel that I was somehow outsmarted again by my Yeitzer. I wasn't looking for indecent pictures... I was just curious about such-and-such an actress... I wasn't expecting to find such indecent pictures...

I see the progress is still very slow on my own, and that's why I decided to become more involved in this forum.

But, I find this is also a challenge. I think my own situation is rather mild, and I find that by seeing other people's stories which are more involved than my own, I end up getting thoughts instead of getting rid of them. Any advice on this point would also be helpful. Thanks.

Today is day 59.

And this afternoon my wife needs helps at home with the kids. Instead of being resentful, I'm looking at it as an opportunity to chill a little. I think this is also amazing that I can do this now.

Also, a ray of hope has been with me all through the day--thinking that I'll meet some of you in One more day and my wallet will be just a bit lighter!

..another kumzitz?

Hatzlocah reb Eye! No days in reality....only today. And the ability to get along with reality is a recovering persons best gift. VHMY

Thanks for calling in. It was definitely one of the (many) highlights of the kumzitz.

Today is day 60. I'm feeling much better than yesterday, Baruch Hashem.

It's funny that when I'm feeling down, it all the chizzuk I've given to others that comes back to

I hit a really rough spot today. I was really on shakey ground.

I think I figured out what was bothering me, and if anyone has some insights I'd greatly appreciate it.

I've been doing pretty well with this "Let Go and Let G-d" attitude. I've been trying to be flexible and just accept whatever comes along. As a result, I've been getting less frustrated. And as a result, I haven't had that urge to act out.

But for a while today, I was getting SICK of this.

Where is there room for aspirations? Especially if I'm supposed to just accept whenever my regularly scheduled programming gets cancelled! I've just been doing a lot of hanging around the house with this approach. I feel like I'm becoming TRAPPED!!!

Is this what G-d wants of me?

Does this "Let Go and Let G-d" mean that you just keep getting knocked out but you should do it with a smile?

When, and HOW, does He start carrying you along to new and really satisfying opportunities?

I feel like my kollel seder is falling apart more and more, and our parnoso situation is getting more worrying as time goes on.

I can be proud of myself a couple of times that I managed to help out at home and not get angry. But, I'm starting to feel, "Does G-d just plan for me to be a nebuch! Just sit around at home smiling, and let everything else fall apart?!"

I was by r' shlachter today. We talked about that these feelings that they come from the heart. So i'm generally bothered about this approach and also had a long chat about it with battleworn last night. Suddenly my heart is burning with desire for this, i can say 'let G-D, let G-D', but how is it gonna make my hearts desire disappear. It's so true what r' s. was saying about head and heart, sometimes when i'm burning, i try to open a sefer and read it, but i just cannot read, my heads not able to focus, it's my heart overpowering. So what's the cure, first we've got to try and cure our hearts and try to feel that we're not going to explode and relax, then one can use the head. I think the let G-D approach has to do more with the head. Correct me if i'm wrong. Not trying to spoil anything for u, but this is my approach now, and is coming out clearer with the help of battleworn and r' s. Hatzlocha rabba. Loi-m

Hey eye wats up. Sorry to hear about your sitch. not getting a clear picture i dont know really what to say. We gotta just realize the yh is out there lurking. and no with all the let go and let g-d stuff he doesnt disappear. Its a tactic. Tactics dont mean you always win. Tactics just mean that when you lose you know how to rebound. We have to realize that the yh wants to get us down down down. And he looks for times of shaky ground to stick it. And when he sticks it he sticks it hard. When it rains it pours. Ive noticed so many times in my life how true a statement this is. When things go rough its just seem slike theres no end. we have to realize that its just a bump in the road and eventually well get passed it. Look back at other problems weve had in life. The ones we thought would never end. Are the still here?? Did we eventually get passed them?? Are we still living with them?? Of course not, because every tunnel has its light at the end. We just gotta wait it out. And thats let go and let g-d. Hell give you the light. It might take a few days but its gonna be there. Just put yourself on cruise control and youll see the light before you know it. Dont try no tricks. Dont try to speed your way through the tunnel. Cuz you might get pulled ovr and you know who the cop is.....THE YH HIMSELF.

Keep on rocking bro.

First of all, Eye - wow. It's incredible that you're working on this issue, and that you've reached such an awesome level of trusting in hashem - and even better, that you're able to see the results of it!

Let me preface this post by saying that I may have misunderstood your question, and if so i apologize. And anyway, my knowledge of this pales in comparison to yours, so who knows if anything I say is going to make any sense? But maybe it can help, and so, I've got to share my thoughts, despite the low odds of that.

Here are my thoughts - the benefits of what you're doing are clear - and I don't think that they should interfere with you having aspirations. There are basically two types of issues that come up in our lives - 1) the kind that we need to actively get involved in, and 2) the kind that we just need to avoid and move past.

When you're dealing with problem type 2, like when your programming gets canceled, is there anything you can do about it? I'd say that you're right - if you're going to get knocked out anyway (in a physical sense, not in a spiritual sense), you might as well smile - why lose whatever you're losing, AND get angry and frustrated, too? You're just losing double! So the more effective way to come up on top is by just saying, "let go and let god," and staying calm.

When you're dealing with problem type 1, though, the first response should still be to relax and realize that it's all from hashem. But then, with your new relaxed frame of mind, you can take whatever steps are possible necessary to improve the situation. Because that's what hashem wants you to do!

I agree with silentbattle. I think one other point if I may. Try and relax and everything will come in due time. I am sorry you are having/had a tough day. Just keep on staying positive, leave it to G-d and love yourself. Be patient with yourself. KUTGW and hopefully tomorrow will be better.
