we are sorry that we need to take a stand but I'maan hakedushah we must demand that women shoppers and clients adhere to this plan whether you're freidel, genendel, ruth or suzanne men behind the counter are gazing at your pinky and some were even caught smelling your aroma - ever so stinky so from here and on, you must wear a woolen glove and no more perfume - of which you (and they) do love we cannot be quiet and look the other way (maybe he should) when you remain in the store for an extended stay even three seconds is more than enough for a man to desire, and all the rest of that stuff your coat must be buttoned tight until your face does turn blue for what if you bend down to tie one of your shoes we cannot afford to take that chance for down your blouse, he might take a glance perhaps a barooka and the entire muslim garb and for breakfast make sure that you eat enough carbs to enter reshus harabim, 180 you must weigh salads and fruit, no more buffet size 16 and 18, not a 2 and a 4 looking good is in the past, sorry, no more i hope you're beginning to chap this vichtige point and follow the rules before entering this joint men can't be nichshal because you're looking hot whether standing or sitting, or chas veshalom a squat and any heels whatsoever is a thing of the past anyways it's better - so your shoes will last 6 feet from the cash register, you must remain at all times follow instructions, read all the signs any man who's meharer because of you mademoiselle bring on the logs, you'll surely burn in hell if you don't like this, it's fine, go take a walk and read that book again from good old rabbi falk the men will be ready and armed with a basket-full of eggs if you ever dare for a moment to cross over your legs!

FYI I called the woman who published the poster. She was surprised and upset that it was put online, and explained that it was never intended for the men-folk, rather to be shared (by women) for women in child rens stores that are predominantly visited by women.

I asked that website to take it down.

The fact that they could put it up as they did was shameful, regardless...

why should they take it down? they will garner more traffic and sell more ads; isn't that what's important?

I admit to finding that a little strange and also naïve.

But apart from that, why did she have to be so specific? Maybe she got a kick out of ladies kicking their legs... Though I doubt it.

Ironically, in the pursuit of that extra kedusha and tznius (because if we just push that bit harder to cover off one more potential michshol Moshiach will come) she showed an astounding lack of awareness of tznius.

You won't have to visit your local porn website anymore - just stick with your whitelisted frum site

News definitely does not help with addiction. Studies show that many people who follow politics are addicted to porn.
