

Important Request from "Hashem Help Me"

Posted by chaimmod - 29 Feb 2024 01:16

Hi everyone. I'm reposting an important Request from our esteemed "Hashem Help Me"

Many guys here are aware that for the last few years an incentive has been offered for fellows trying to break free.

A small but choshuv sum of money was offered for tzaddikim that for a personally designed amount of days (most guys it was 30 days) would:

1. text daily updates,
2. refrain from any purposeful physical stimulation (except in the context of marriage),
3. refrain from "outside" stimulation - computer imagery/phone calls/books/inappropriate destinations - even non-pornographic,
4. not use an unsafe device even for kosher purposes (except if absolutely necessary - but even then with accountability). Some chevra "cashed in" for many months, until they were confident that they had "graduated".

Automatically this system, besides creating accountability and motivation, helped foster a mentor relationship for the newbies attempting to break free. The results were BH astounding, with a very high percentage of guys breaking free completely, and others at least tasting consistent very extended clean times, giving them hope and motivation to keep at it. Many thousands of privately raised dollars were distributed BH.

Guard Your Eyes watched this program develop and "explode".

On occasion GYE was able to be involved with funding the reward, but due to technical issues could not be heavily involved. Now that certain legalities and other technicalities were ironed out, GYE will be able to send rewards in a more consistent fashion to many of the participants. GYE has opened a page explaining the program and created a fundraising system to iyh cover what is becoming an enormous budget.

Please consider being part of the program (many reading this may have already been part by being on the receiving end...).

@Heeling, followed your footsteps!

As an individual who has personally reaped the benefits of this program, I must assert that the value of this program extends beyond the financial aspect. The program's ability to cultivate a sense of connection and provide guidance is equally significant, if not more so.

Thanks to the (hidden) pillars of Klal Yisrael!
