

New exclusive forum for married men.
Posted by admin2 - 13 Jan 2010 17:34

Due to a recent request made by one of our members, we've decided to open up a private area on the forum exclusively devoted to married men. If you are a married man and you'd like to gain access to this area, please send me a request via PM.

Bruce had some good points above... Made me realize that maybe some of the older "unmarried" guys who are about to get married should be allowed access there too. So I think I'll make a compromise. If you are unmarried and want access, send me a PM (or an e-mail) explaining why you think you have what to gain, and we will consider your request. If we accept it, you will be allowed to view what goes on there, but we still ask that you refrain from active participation in the discussion. How's that?

Bruce, you're in.

And by the way, any married guys who want to join should also send me a PM or e-mail. I can't remember everyone who is married.

If your a man and interested in women can you get access to the girls forum? Sorry.

The issue on the womens forum was their security not ours. The issue with the mens forum is our security.

Me3, I disagree. I think it's different with someone who's older and understands more, and likewise needs to take more into account with shidduchim related issues than a 22 yr old whippersnapper, who basically chooses his wife by eeny meeny miny mo - regardless of how much he takes into account.

i think what kollel guy is saying is that the new forum should be for special, better people to the exclusion of the non-special lesser people reagrdless of whether or not lesser folk actually were able to sucker someone to show up under the chuppa...basically, the new forum is an exclusive club for special people...

LOL, yes Rage, you hit the nail on the head. I haven't been getting that much respect lately, and I need some kind of status boost. I figured the only way to do that is to find a way to divide GUE in a way that I end up on the upper half.

And I think it's "better-special" as opposed to "special-better", which can give the mistaken implication that we're only better because were special, when in fact what makes us so special is that we happen to be much better people.

So basically, if i ask nicely, I might be allowed into the special room, as long as I sit on the side quietly and not make any noise...

Do I get a candy if I'm good?

One other point that I missed before - what you're basically saying is, "yes, please, come here, open up, it's a safe place...oh, where am I going? I'm going over there to talk in private. Yes, yes, where you are IS safe...just not for me. I'll be over there."

Somebody is getting very bitter about a board he can't see...

Sigh

Did you see the post above where I offered to let the older unmarried guys view it too?

I already let Bruce and Yiddle view it (without posting), so why not you too?

Stop moping and send me a PM or e-mail why you think I should let you, and we'll consider it

I don't think he's mature enough, don't let him in.
